"Peck's Bad Boy" that appears at the opera house on Tuesday, Oct. 19, is a bright, clean and sparkling musical comedy; its humor is spontaneous and honest and there is not a dull moment in the play. The company is one of the best that has ever appeared in the play. No more pleasing attraction will visit your city this season.

Gasparrini Bros. of this city have rented part of Harry Bertoli's stonished at Montpelier, and will put on a gang of workmen. It is a pretty well known fact that Russia used to send its prisoners to the great Siberian mines, there to work under the most cruel system ever invented and die without ever seeing their relatives or friends again. Manager Roach of the Pavilion found three acts of vaudeville awaiting him when he arrived at the Pavilion this morning, due to a mistake in booking, but as all were well known artists and headed by the famous Scotty Provan, the well known Scottish comedian and musician, Mr. Roach decided to keep them all, stating "nothing is too good for the patrons of the Pavilion." Owing to the fact that the program will run nearly one and one half hours, there will be but two shows to-night, the first one starting at 7:30 and ending shortly after 9 o'clock, after which the second show will start. As every act is a high class feature, the capacity of the Pavilion will no doubt be taxed to its utmost. The fact that the show contains three numbers of vaudeville where it usually had but one will also serve to draw a large attendance. No advance will be made in the price of admission.
